Teaching Tip

A cultural studies project

The celebration of Halloween is not unique to the United State - although the practice of trick-or-treating may be. An interesting project for your class is to research the history and practice of this holiday in the U.S. and in other areas such as Latin America, Europe, and Asia, etc. They will find variations on practices for Halloween, All Saints Day, All Souls Day, and similar holidays as well as interesting foods.

Have each group do a poster with details of the celebrations in the country/ area they were assigned. Instruct each group to also do a short presentation on their findings. For the older students have them research and draw correlations between history and present day
